Non-exclusive licence explained

A licence may also be non-exclusive. If you grant someone a non-exclusive licence to do something with your work, you may continue to use your work in that way, and you can also grant other people non-exclusive licences to use your work in that way. For example, if you grant a nonexclusive licence to a publisher to reproduce your illustration in a book, you may also grant other publishers the same non-exclusive licence, and you may reproduce the illustration yourself.

Hello again ms Smith,

Here you can listen to the music: <http://periodicarecords.altervista.org/argonauta.html>

Basically we are a group of artists focused on the sound of the 80s, and I think there is a design that would be perfect to suggest the listener. The first track tells of an Argonauta enchanted by the singing of a mermaid, who, however, can never love anyone.

The format of this record will be 7 inches, we will print limited copies (500 units) and will not be digitally distributed only physically on vinyl. Usually I personally take care of the graphic realization.

Attached the paint that I would like to use ("Ink on paper exploring lesbian identity") - Dimension should be more or less 17 cm in height. It's the first time I've asked permission to use an image of others, and I really hope you can grant us this!

Waiting for your response,

Have a nice day!

Dario di Pace

Dear Dario,

Thank you for your email was a pleasant surprise. I had a great time listening to your music and noting the flavour of the '80's with the the then new techno music. Put a smile on my face.

I have a few little questions.

What is your production timeline I will need to go through my archives to find the artwork please give me a few days/week ?

I am happy draw up a simple contract to keep us both copyright happy?

Fee wise what do you normally do?

Do you have a website?

Warm regards

Fern

Salve Fern,

Copyright Agreement between Fern Smith and Dario di Pace

So nice that you approved the music =) Anyway regarding your questions:

- . Production timeline, there is not much time - I should send all the material in print next week...
- . I would need a scanned image at a good resolution or a photo if the original copy is big enough. Consider that the layout dimensions of a 7inch cover are 17 cm x 17 cm, so it's not necessary a big file.
- . Yes, no prob, we can draw up a simple contract - and usually the name of the author of the paint is credited in the cover information.
- . About fee this would be the first time that I request permission to use someone else's work. I had budgeted to pay a symbolic fee in advance for you (100,00 $), that is proportionate to the earnings that are quite low and generally they cover production costs and allow me to donate a small fee also for the music author. I really hope that my proposal may be fine for you!

Thanks again,

Dario
